

Acceptable and Unacceptable Behaviors

Acceptable

Collaborating on webassign problems, but working through your own.

Collaborating on lab reports, but using your own wording.

Helping or tutoring others who are having trouble understanding.

Comparing answers with another student to see if you are on the right track.

Unacceptable

Copying Webassign problems from another student while substituting in your own numbers.

Entering answers into Webassign for another student.

Figuring out answers for another student or giving answers to another student.

Doing another student's work.

Cutting and pasting part or all of a lab report, even if you intend to change the wording.

Giving someone else a copy of your lab report, no matter what assurances that person gives you about how they will use it. If any part of your lab report ends up in someone else's lab report, you may also be held liable.